What Makes Marbella so Special?

Marbella is a well-known place throughout Spain and the rest of the world for, among other things, it's climate and quality range. One of the worlds most sought municipalities to visit as a tourist. And it isn't a no brainer that people have established this opinion.

Marbella has a wonderfully cosmopolitan atmosphere, exudes charisma; attracting visitors for it's many facets: diverse quality-beaches, tropical climate, multitude of leisure facilities, including some of the best golf courses in Europe; Michelin star restaurants, world-class nightlife and International luxury shopping brands.

Marbella is a charming, warm and welcoming city, beguiling to all who visit her. So it's no surprise that time and again, it tops the most visited city in Spain list. Who wouldn't want a piece of the action in Marbella?

Marbella's motto is "a way of life", if you are looking for a holiday that offers great beaches, wonderful all year round climate, unique leisure facilities, gastronomy and entertainment, then you have made a great choice.

"It's way of life will enchant you"

Gastronomy & Restaurants

Whether you enjoy fine dining or traditional tapas, some of the best restaurants on the Costa del Sol can be found in Marbella, East Marbella, Puerto Banús and San Pedro de Alcántara. Traditional tapas bars, jostle with fish and seafood restaurants, beach bars, Michelin-star establishments and international diners. Whichever way you turn in Marbella, you'll come across a restaurant. Head to the old fishing port for a plate of fried fish, clams sardines. The Old Town combines local tapas with some real fine dining establishments.

Playas, Beaches & One-day Excursions/Trips

The Marbella coastline stretches from Cabopino through to San Pedro de Alcántara. 26 kilometres of golden sandy beaches, shelving down to the calm Mediterranean Sea.

To the east, Cabopino port and beach are home to a couple of laid-back and economical Chiringuitos (Beach Restaurants), the beach right next to the port has sunbeds for hire and is a popular kite surfing spot. As you move west away from the port, the beach becomes a nudist spot. Head west to the popular area of Elviria and the famous Nikki Beach and then on to one of the most beautiful and natural stretches of beach, which joins Elviria and the urbanisation of El Rosario.

Funny Beach just outside of Marbella, is an amusement park on the beach, with go karts, parasailing, water scooters and a restaurant bar. Marbella town's beaches are well equipped, with water sports facilities, beach restaurants line the golden sands, cooking sardines on the spit, the waters are calm, ideal for family beach days. Head further west into Puerto Banus and you have a mix of family beach zones and hedonistic beach clubs, where you'll likely bump into a few celebrities and paparazzi.

Finally, you reach San Pedro de Alcántara, at the western limits of Marbella. Here the wide, palm-fringed beaches are more laid-back, backed by a beautiful promenade and restaurants.

One Day Excursions/Trips

The capital of Costa del Sol Málaga, "city of dreams" Ronda, Mijas Pueblo, Casares, Castillo de Castellar, Nerja con Balcón de Europa, and the fine caves in Cuevas de Nerja, La Concha (mountain) and just a few hours from Marbella we have resorts like Granada and winter sports resort Sierra Nevada as well as Córdoba, Sevilla, Cádiz and Tarifa. One of Europe's coolest cities, the capital of Spain, Madrid, is only a 3-hour train ride away. We also recommend you to visit Gibraltar with its British roots, just 53km away.

Nightlife

The Nightlife scene in Marbella is famous Worldwide with the Summer Season in particular being when 7 nights a week partying can be enjoyed with International DJs making an appearance at the Super Clubs and hip Rooftop Bars being open from dusk until dawn.

The area of Puerto Banús is where the younger crowds tend to head however Marbella Puerto Deportivo and its Promenade area, the Old Town of Marbella and the towns either side of Marbella such as San Pedro de Alcántara and Elviria may not have any clubs but certainly have a selection of great Cocktail bars, Lounge bars and more International Pubs too.

Stores, shopping malls & opening hours

The luxury Puerto Banús is crammed with designer boutiques, if you have a few hundred pounds to spend on a t-shirt, bikini or pair of shoes, then this is the place to shop. If you're looking for something a little more unique, then Marbella Old Town is a good shopping destination. Many recommended local shops can also be found in the old town of Marbella, along the main street Ricardo Soriano and in Puerto Banús.

Store opening hours are normally 10-20; bigger chains such as Zara, Mango, Massimo Dutti and others are open 9-22. Sundays are normally closed except during the high season (July & August) and first two Sundays in September as well as the last two Sundays in December.

There is three large shopping centers

La Cañada

(largest), El Corte Inglés "Costa Marbella" and Marina Banús where you can find literary anything!

Opening hours: 10-22

Markets/"Mercadillos"

Mondays in Marbella Old

Town, Thursdays in San Pedro, Fridays in Las Chapas and Saturdays in Centro Plaza (Nueva Andalucía).

Wine & Spirits

1. Sant Casa Santi

2. Casa Pablo

3. Bacus

Vinos & Licores

"Between Marbella town and Puerto Banús you have an impressive mix of independent boutiques, luxury brands and international Spanish high street brands as well as local/traditional hidden gems"

Other see's and do's

From the beaches and enclaves of east Marbella through to the western municipal of San Pedro de Alcántara, Marbella offers so many activities and facilities, visitors have no need to venture away from the area to enjoy a full and active holiday.

In the famous Plaza de Naranja 'Orange Square', you can while away hours, sipping sangria, taking in the beautiful surroundings and people, visiting the charming boutiques and gift stores.

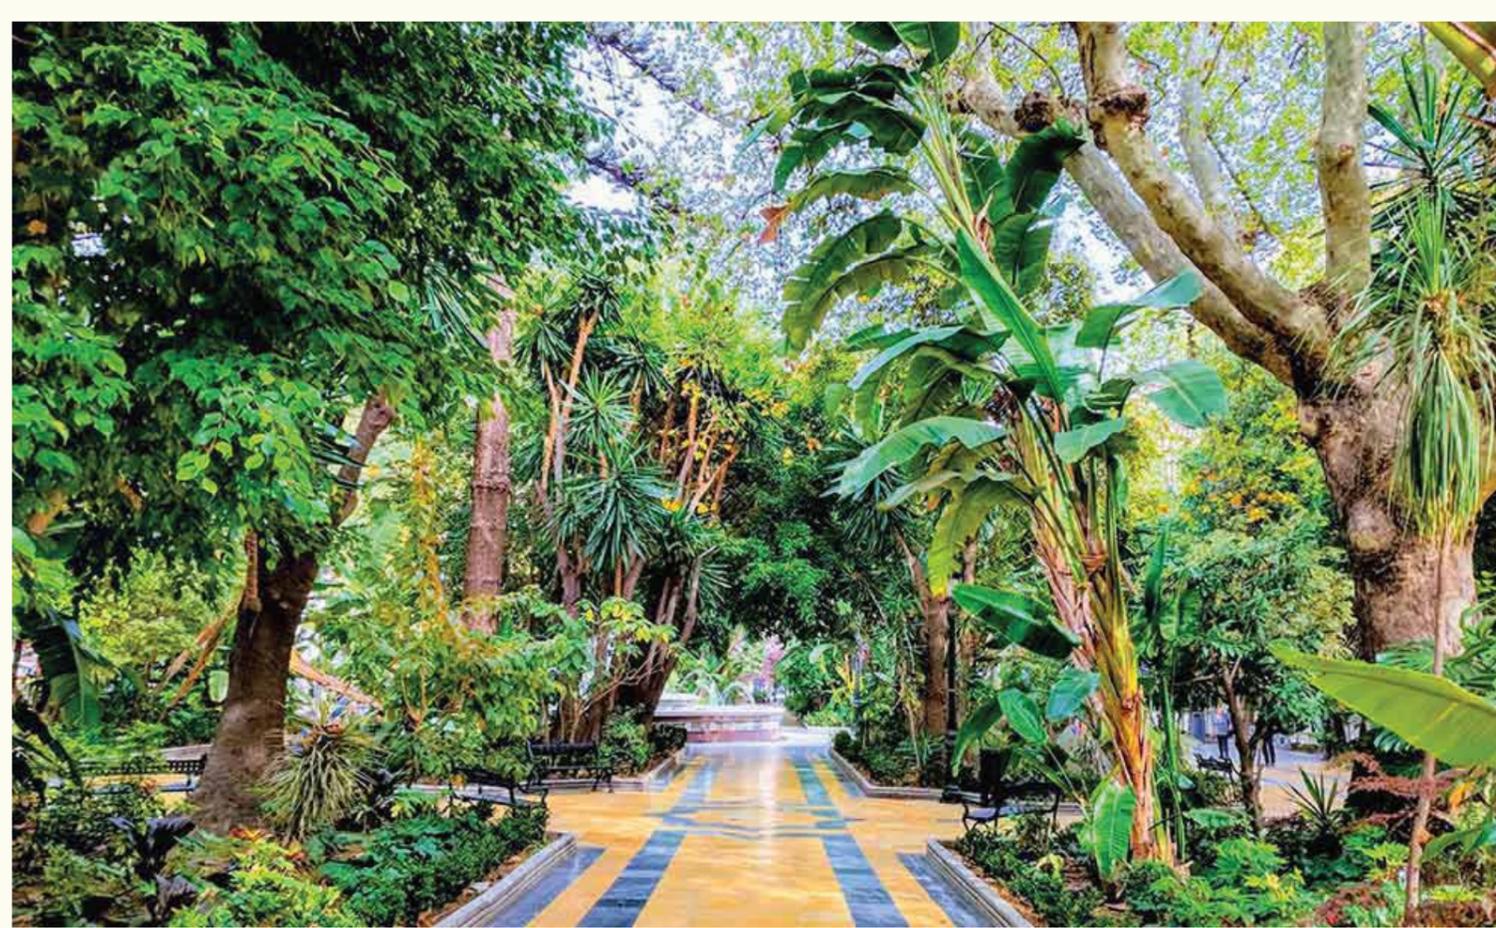

The labyrinth of tiny streets and alleys that surround Orange Square will reveal further tiny shops selling all forms of trinkets, fashion and souvenirs and there are some excellent restaurants and bars as well.

Cross the road from the Old Town and you find yourself in La Alameda Park, filled with exotic plants and trees, leading down to an open exhibition area; where you can enjoy a permanent exhibition of Dali sculptures and temporary art and media exhibitions during the year.

Down from the park is the Paseo Marítimo (Promenade); this is one of the favourite places for locals and visitors. The boulevard is filled with restaurants of all gastronomies, with terraces facing out to the beautiful sea.

Head up into the mountains behind Marbella to enjoy day visits to some of the inland, whitewashed pueblos of the region. The closest village is Ojen, around 10 minutes drive from the coast, nestled between the Sierra Blanca and the Sierra Alpújata and just five minutes from the stunning Sierra de las Nieves natural park. A charming town, small but perfectly formed. Slightly further inland you have the villages of Monda and Coin, and Istan is reached heading inland from the Golden Mile. but the villages still retain an air of the past and are worth a visit.

Marbella might not be a big city, but it has its fair share of cultural attractions. If the day is overcast and you don't fancy shopping, then we recommend a trip to the Bonsai Museum (Museo de Bonsai), which houses a wonderful collection of Bonsai trees from all around the world, in its fantastic garden-museum. Art lovers have the choice of the Ralli Museum, a contemporary art space; the Polígono Gallery, a wonderful space created to emulate the art district in Beijing. And then of course, you have the utterly famous Picasso Museo in Malaga.

For the kids: Playgrounds, tivolis & waterparks

There are also a lot of activities for families with children that will make the trip unforgettable, not least from the children's perspective. This includes Zoo's, water parks, dolphin swimming and a lot more.
